

Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces

Honorary Doctorate for Prof. Helmuth Möhwald

Prof. Dr. Helmuth Möhwald, Director at the Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces in Potsdam, obtained the degree of doctor honoris causa from the University Montpellier, the oldest university of France.

On 7th of April 2008 the diploma was handed over to Prof. Dr. Helmuth Möhwald by the president of the University Montpellier. Academy member Prof. R. Corriu celebrated the laudation and additional speeches were held by the rector of the French Academy of Sciences and the head of the atomic energy centres (CEA). The Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces cooperates since years with the University of Montpellier and maintains an associated European laboratory with the newly founded CEA institute for separation chemistry (ICSM).

Further Information:

Katja Schulze (Public Relations)

Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces, Potsdam

Tel.: +49 331 567-9203

Fax: +49 331 567-9402

E-Mail: katja.schulze@mpikg.mpg.de

Prof. Dr. Helmuth Möhwald

Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces, Potsdam

Tel.: +49 331 567-9201

Fax: +49 331 567-9202

E-Mail: helmuth.moehwald@mpikg.mpg.de